U.S. Warns

UN on Plan

Draft Resolution

Called Dangerous

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 5 (UPI).—The United States said today that any effort to redefine peace essentials for the Middle East or to impose conditions on either side in the conflict might endanger the area's shaky truce.

U.S. Ambassader George Bush offered arguments to the General

Assembly against a draft resolu-tion that is being circulated, but has not yet been formally pro-

The draft resolution would have the assembly call for "immediate and unconditional" Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories, urge all countries to withhold aid that would enable

Israel to perpetuate the occopa-

tion, and ask the Security Council to take "all appropriate measures" to achieve evacuation.

Mr. Bush told the assembly that guidelines for Middle East peace were established in the Security Council resolution of Nov. 22, 1267, which, while calling for Israeli withdrawal, also pro-vided for establishment of "secure and recognized boundaries" in the posed, hy nonaligned countries.

British Study Urges Lowering Drinking Age, Longer Hours

By Alvin Shuster

LONDON, Dec. 5 (NYT).-A long-awaited report today proposed a major easing of Britain's drinking laws to allow lor.ger hours for pubs and the admission of children under certain condiget drunk and use bad Janguage

The report, described as a blueprint for a "pub revolution," also suggested that the legal age for pub drinking be lowered from 18 to 17. And it predicted the development of continental-like cases catering to the entire family with food and drink.

The proposals for longer hours generally were welcomed by the British, who consume about 35 million barrels of beer a year, the equivalent of 30 gallons for each man and woman, But the prospect of children squirming around underloot caused some alarm. "Most people come to my pub to

The report, prepared over the last 20 months by a 13-member committee appointed by the home secretary made it clear that chil-dren would not be wandering about in every inch of all 64,000 pubs in England and Wales. It said that pub owners could apply for permission to admit children only to certain rooms deemed

The longer hours, apart from pleasing Britons, would come as a source of joy to tourists, who often view the British way of drinking with some confusion

The reason is that, under present law, pubs close from 3 to 5:30 p.m. every weekday. They may open no carlier than 11 a.m. without special permission, and must close by 11 p.m. during the week. The Sunday hours are 12 noon to 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 10:30 14 Hours a Day...

The committee, headed by Lord Erroll, - 2 - fermer Conservative member of Parliament, proposed that the 9 1/2-hour weekday limit be abandoned and that pubs be. allowed to remain open from 10. a.m. until midnight a foial of 14 nours a day seven days a week. Publicans no longer would be re-quired to close in the afternoon. Many apparently would continue to do so snyway to give their barmen some time off

The proposals, attacked by temperance groups, will now be stud-led by the Home Office before legislation goes to Parliament.

Paris Talk Is Put Off For a Day Both Optimism, Pessimism Result

By Jonathan C. Randal PARIS, Dec. 5 (WF),-The abrupt cancellation of today's planned secret meeting between Remy A. Klesinger and North Vietnamese negotiators added another element of uncertainty to the search for peace. The session's rapid rescheduling for temorrow did little to relieve the uncer-

. Paced with a news blacknut from both delegations, observers were reduced to speculating about the reasons for the postponement.
Optimists hoped that the five hours of negotiations yesterday when the talks resumed after a nine day histor meant that enough progress had been made to require serious redrafting and to necessitate consultation by both delegations with their capitals and respective allies.

These hopes were supported by a Washington announcement today stating that, since yesterday's bargaining session, heavy cable traffic had developed between esidential adviser Kissinger and the White House

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Ziegier said the exchanges were intensive. He said President Nixon had received a number of cables from Mr. Kissinger, and had replied with "certain instruc-tions." He added that Mr. Kissinger had been in touch with the White House but not personally with Mr. Nixon, by telephone. Mr. Ziegler gave no reason for the one day suspension of the Paris. talks, saying only: "Both sides immusily agreed to postpone the neeting for a day."

The length of their meetingnearly three hours prompted speculation that Hanol was having almost as much trouble with its ally as the United States was probably encountering with the South Victnamese government.

Meanwhile, the South Vietnamese peace-tails delegation issued a statement denying Viet Cong and Hanoi charges that Saigon was planning to exterminate political prisoners in its prisons at or before the cease-fire.

The statement countercharged that captured Viet Cong documents called for the post-truce "100-percent extermination" of hamici and village cadres and elected officials as well as a "massacre" of civil servants, army officers and their families. added that since the conflict began nothing had been heard of 28,000 South Vietnamese soldiers and civilians captured by the Viet Cong.

U.S. Fertility Rate Drops Below Replacement Level for First Time Figure of 2.08 Children per Family Lower Than That of Depression Years

By Jack Rosenthal WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (NYT).

-Fertility in the United States has dropped, for the first time, below the "replacement" level of 21 children a family that is necessary to achieve zero popu-

The population is still growing, but it appears that the rate of growth this year will be only a little more than half that averaged during the sixties.

According to new federal statistics, for 19 consecutive months the birth rate each month has been lower than in the same month a year before. And, despite an increase in women of child-bearing age, so has been the actual number of births.

The estimated fertility rate, consequently, has dropped from 2.39 children a family for the first nine months of 1971 to 2.08 this year.

If it persists, this seemingly small difference in rate would mean nearly 17 million fewer Americans by the year 2000 than at the 2.39 rate.

The larger significance of the new rate lies in the fact that it means the country has, for the first time, cracked what analysts called the "21 barrier."

The 2.1-child figure is that required for the population eventually no more than to replace itself, assuming no immigration. This is the goal of the national zero population growth movement. (The figure is 2.1 rather than just 2 to account for girls who die before reaching child-bearing age.)

Even during the Depression years of 1935 to 1939, previously tile lowest recorded birth rate period, the average fertility figure was slightly above 23 children a family. Were the nation to sustain a

2.1-child fertility rate for 70 years, the population would stop growing, having reached about 320 million. It is now about 209.3 million. The presence of a disproper-tionately large number of young people in the population means that zero population growth could not be schizved in a short period of time. The new figures indicate that the population will increase by 0.7 percent this year. The average annual increase during the sixtles

Were the fertility rate to go 10 years ago and 900,000 more below the 21 rate, as it now . than 20 years ago. has, and stay there, the day of zero population growth would come correspondingly sooner. Demographers caution against any expectation that zero population growth is likely. They treat short-term "period" statistics wardy, noting sharp historic swines in fertility. ... For example, as recently as 1957, the peak year of the postwar baby boom, the fertility rate climbed to an all-time U.S. high of almost 3.8 children a The possibility of a new up-

-Population experts identify a series of reasons for such declines. One is the growing pro-portion of young women who stay single. Another is that even married women are having children later. A third is the black, white, rich and poor—to have smaller families. Other factors are the growing number of working wives, the state of the economy the increasing use and effectiveness of contraception and the broadening liberalization of abortion

Agenda Issue Next at Talks In Helsinki

HKLSINKI, Dec. 5 (AP),— Representetives of 32 European countries and the United States and Canada, who are laying the groundwork for a European security conference, wound up openiog epeeches today and re-cessed their meeting for one day before tackling the difficult job of drawing up an agenda.

The five days of policy statements made it clear that some fundamental differences divided the Soviet bloc and Western states. But the atmosphere of detente prevailed.

In a final speech before the meeting adjourned to observe Pinland's national day tomorrow the Finnish delegate said that participants "have succeeded in creating a constructive and businesslike atmosphere promising positive advancement."

"The first working period has proved, in our opinion, that the political will necessery for achievement of substantial results does exist among the participants," he said.

Time Reserved Both Yugoslavia and France have reserved time when the meetings resume Thursday to present their views on how the preparations should proceed.

Opening speeches showed that the Sovict Union and most Communist-bloc countries want the foreign ministers to meet in Helsinki in Junc. They want the agenda to be broad so that the preparations do not become stalled on details. But Romania said that the conference must adopt an expilcit document committing the states to refrain from using force no matter what the circumatances, the form or the pretext.

The wording was aimed at preventing a recurrence of the 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia Soviet-ied Warsaw Pact

Speeches by several Western countries made it clear that they are interested in breaking down the line that has divided Europe into East and West. They especially want the freer movement of men and ideas across borders, a concept that the Soviet Union and its allies seek to avoid. The United States, Great Britain and other countries stressed the need for careful preparation to insure what they consider meaningful results. That includes making the agenda as concrete as possible.

British Point

If there is to be a conference, Great Britain said, it must "allow our ministers to raise and to insure the consideration of the points to which they ettach importance."

The Danes called the agenda "the backbone of the confer-ence" and said that it would require considerable time and attention to complete.

Several countries foresee a conference of foreign ministers, followed by meetings of committees to prepare final decisions to be made at a new ministerial session.

The Soviet Union wants the decisions of ministers to be approved at a summit meeting. There also have been suggestions that countries on the southern shore of the Mediterranean somehow should be brought into the discussions and Austria said that the Middle East crisis should be on the agenda. It was expected that several days of corridor conferences would be required before the formula for an agenda could be

Conference sources predicted a Christmas recess starting about Dec. 15 with sessions resuming in mid-January.

Watergate Trial Judge Wants Prosecution to Broaden Scope

By Lawrence Meyer

-The judge who will preside at tha trial of seven men charged in connection with the break-in and alleged hugging of Democratic National Committee headquarters said yesterday that the trial should cover a broader area than the prosecution has indicated it will cover.

The comments by Judge John Sirica during a four-hour pretrial conference were the first indication that the trial may explore whether the seven defendants were operating on orders from higher authorities when they allegedly conspired to break in and hug the Democratic headquarters, in the Watergate hullding com-plex, on June 17.

"This jury is going to want to know what did these men go into that headquarters for." Judge Sirica, chief judge of the U.S. District Court here, said. "Was their sole purpose political esplonage? Were they paid? Was there financial gain? Who hired them? Who started this?"

In the course of the wide-ranging conference, lawyers argued

 Judge Sirica should exercise some "control" over the press in order to keep it from prejudicing the jury. William O. Bittman, attorney for former White House aide E. Howard Hunt jr., told Judge Sirica that the press "has had a field day writing preju-dicial articles. I think it should come to a halt and your honor has a right to atop it." The jurist, over defense objections, indicated that he would deal with the problem of trial publicity by sequestering the jury.

• The Los Angeles Times should be compelled, under the threat of contempt-of-court proceedings, to produce tapes and notes of an interview with Alfred C. Baldwin 3d, described by the defense as the government's key

According to federal investigators, the June 17 break-in was one incident in a yearlong campaign, on behalf of President Nixon's re-election drive, to spy on and disrupt Democratic presidential campaigns. In addition to Mr. Hunt, one other former White House aide, G. Gordon Liddy, is charged in connection with the alleged Watergate bug-ging. Mr. Liddy was counsel for the Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President until he was fired after refusing to answer the

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (WP), questions of FBI agents investigating the incident.

The court cannot increase the penalty. Lt. Calley is under house arrest at Fort Benning, Ga. Lt. Calley, 29, was convicted nearly two years ago of murder-ing at least 32 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai during a searchand-destroy mission on March 16, 1968. He was sentenced to life in prison, but that subsequently was redoced to 20 years, followed by President Nixon's order to keep him under bouse arrest rather than in military prison.

Throughout nearly six bours of arguments yesterday Mr. Latimer pictured Lt. Calley as the sompegoat, noting that of 25 men charged in connection with the massacre only one-Lt. Calleywas convicted.

The defense argued that Lt. Calley should not have been convicted of any crime greater than manslaughter, contending that he acted without malice, and without malice there could be no murder charge.

Suit for My Lai Survivors SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5 treuters).—South Vietnamese Buddhist leaders have filed a lawsuit here seeking $400 million dam-ages from the U.S. government and Lt. Calley for 57 survivors of the My Lai massacre. Attorney Paul Narkin, who filed the damages suit, said yesterday that while attention had been focused on Lt. Calley and the killings, the 57 survivors had gone unaided.

Mr. Narkin said Lt. Calley was serving his 30-year term "in his own apartment with a telephone, television and a girl friend who can visit him any time she wants."

Mr. Narkin alleges in his suit that Lt. Calley's current appeal is a charade and that Lt. Calley should be extradited to Vietnam to stand trial for his crimes against the Vietnamese people.

The decision, in a California case, held that the First Amendment-guaranteeing freedom of speech and, by extension, expression—is not intended to permit real or simulated sexual acts in public. But the 21st Amendment, while ending Prohibition, granted state ilquor officials the broad authority to guard "public bealth, welfare and morals," said Justice William H. Rehnquist for the

U.S. Court Bars 3-Month Delay In Drug Trial

NEW YORK Dec. 5 (UPI).— The U.S. Court of Appeals yester-day rejected a bid by attorneys for Auguste Joseph Ricord to postpone his narcotics-conspiracy trial for three months.

The three-judge panel, citing "the public interest in a speedy trial of a serious charge of this nature," allowed the trial to proceed as scheduled yesterday be-fore Judge John Cannella. In arguing against a delay, the government said its key witoess, Cesar Blanchi, 36, of Concepcion, Paraguay, had been threatened Saturday at the Nassau County

The threat was made, the government said, by Christian David, a 41-year-old Frenchman and alleged leader of one of the world's largest heroin-smuggling operations. He pleaded guilty Friday in federal court to a narcotics charge and was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Mr. Ricord, a 62-year-old restaurant operator, was extradited from Paraguay Sept. 2. He has been held on a charge of con-spiracy in the smuggling of 94 pounds of heroin into Florida in

Ship Strike Ends On West Coast

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (UPI) .- A five-week strike by 10,000 West Coast merchant marine deck officers was settled yesterday.

A spokesman for the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots said that about 40 vessels made idle by the dispute were immediately released. The strike against Pacific Maritime Association, an employers organization on the West Coast hegan Oct, 34 and severely affected commerce in Hawail, which is almost totally dependent on surface shipping for consumer goods and other materials.

Of Calley Case WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP).— He said the First Amendment The Suprema Court ruled, 6-3, freedom does not go beyond books today that states may shut and movies to gross sexuality

The ruling is likely to have an impact beyond California since it affects bara and nightclubs in all states that sell liquor by the drink while displaying what Justice Rehnquist described as gross sexuality. Since the California regulations uphold by the court specifically prohibit the display of genitaua, authorities in other states would appear to be able to ban bottomless dancing.

The decision reverses a threejudge panel in Los Angeles. Justice Rehnquist said that customers in California bars chgaged in sexual acts with women eotertainers and that prostitution involving some of the dancera flourished. Based on the evi-dence, he said it was not irrational for state liquor officials to conclude that "the sale of liquor by the drink and lewd or naked dancing and entertathment should not take place simuttaneously iu bars and cocktail lounges,"

In dissent, Justice Marshall said that even if there was a link between sex-related entertainment and prostitution "it would hardly justify a broad-scale attack oo First Amendment freedoms.

Toll Expected to Rise; 19 Dead in Thailand

MANILA, Dec. 5 (Reuters) .-About 170 persons were killed and hundreds of familie; were made homeiess by the typhoon designated as Therese, which swept through the southern Philippines Sunday, the National

Red Cross reported today. A spokesman said that many of these who died were drowned when about 500 homes were washed away in Micamis Oriental Province, 475 miles southeast of Manila.

He said that more reports were expected from other provinces and that the death toll probably would rise. Heavy damage to the banana crop was reported in the province of Agusan del Sur in Mindanao and in the central Philippines province of Bohol. Leaves Philippines

The typhoon moved away from the Philippines into the South China Sea early today. Meanwhile, the death toll from the typhoon designated as Sally, which struck southern Thailand yesterday, rose to 19 today. Gov. Aroon Narathdecha of Surat Thani Province said that a fishing boat with 10 crew members aboard was missing in the Gulf of Thailand.

Nine persons were reported killed on Samui Island off the coast of the province, 585 miles south of Bangkok, when the tropical storm swept across the island yesterday, he added.

Mr. Farago prove to be authentic, it appears that Bormann escaped the Soviet Army's encirclement of Berlin, where he was reported Primary Schools in France to have been killed in a tank battle on May 1, 1945, shortly be-fore the collapse of the Third Get 1st Big Reform Since '38

The documents begin with 1948 when, they say, Bormann arrived in Argentina with a passport supplied by the Vatican on the authority of Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, the present Fope Paul VI. The Vatican has expression in contrast to the classic concern for teaching French as something akin to a dead language. Teachers are encouraged to denied issuing such a passport.

Haven in Argentina

The documents assert that Bormann was received in Argentina by Gen. Jose Humberto Sosa Molina, war minister in the government of President Juan D. Peron, and given protection until Mr. Peron's fall in 1955. While in Argentina, the man described as Bormann was said to have used the name Eliezer Goldstein.

Later, moving about in Peru. Chile, Bolivia, Paraguay and Brazil, he reportedly assumed such names as Jose Perez, Juan Gomez and Ricardo Bauer, Mr. Farago said he had a Brazilian police report showing that the man left nine of his 10 fingerprints on a beer bottle and a drinking glass.

Statuette Found By Farmer in U.K. Sells for £36,750

LONDON, Dec. 5 (IHT).-A 12th-century gilt bronze statuette of St. John the Evangelist dug up by a farm worker last May was sold at auction today for £36.75 Arthur Davey, 42, who attended the sale at Christie's in London, found the statuette (3 3.4 inches high) while hoeing weeds on a farm near Bury St. Edmunds, It is believed to have been made by a craftsman specializing in such work near Liège circa 1180, a spokesman for the auctioncering firm said.

Mr. Davcy carried the statuette around in his pocket and even-tually gave it to his son who tried unsuccessfully to swap it for a toy car. Later, Mr. Davey took the statuette to a nearby farmer with a knowledge of antiques who, in turn, brought it to the auctioneers' attention. The statuette was in a sale of medieval and Renaissance sculpture which made £174,058.

Stephane Lissner, an ambitious José Limon: An Eagle of the Dance

By Clive Barnes

NEW YORK (NYT).—As a men he was austere, grave and kindly. There was a courtliness to his every gesture, and he moved through the world like a prince. As a dancer he was an eagle. As a choreographer he was extremely gifted and fluent. He was never a particularly innovative artist, but possessed an innate understanding of that fusion of dance drama and music that is the core of his work. He has left half a dozen ballets, at least, that should find a permanent place in the American repertory.

Jose Limon, who died Saturday at the age of 64 once wrote:
"I view myself as a disciple and follower of Isadora Duncan and of the American impetus as exemplified by Doris Humphrey and Martha Graham, and by their vision of the dance as an art capable of the sublimity of tragedy and the Dionysian ecstasies." Limon's career consistently gave flesh to those visions. He created images, he created dances and he created dancers.

He was a dance leader and took his position seriously. As a teacher for many years at the Julliard School, he conducted classes that were notable for their clarity, precision and care. He seemed a fine and private man, but I think he loved America, traditions

Of the man as a dancer, what will be recalled? When I first saw him dance he was 45 years old, and still, I imagine, pretty much at his best. His dancing had a quality that can hest be expressed as moral fervor. He had a magnificently sculptured head, and a body that seemed to brood. So far as his presence went, it could perhaps, in our day and age, be com-pared on dance terms only with the ballet dancer Leonide Massine. It was hypnotic. No. even more, it was almost tangible,

Certainly on stage he lacked wit. He never contracted the eifin nature of one of his chief teachers, Charles Weidman, and this was a loss. Yet his leadership and integrity were unquestionable. As a choreographer Limon must be regarded as one of America's greatest. For all the early years of his company, until her death in 1958, his artistic mentor was Doris Humphrey.

In the post-Humphrey years his genius blazed as bright as ever, but was untamed and unrefined. Despite his almost prim exterior, be had that kind of Dionysiac talent that never knew when to stop. But how much greater is that than a talent that never knows when to start. American dance today would be a very different thing had it not been for José Limon.

José Limon ... untamed.

Understandable as is the President's unwillingness to make any fundamental shift while Vietnam remains unsettled, the second-line changes he has instituted at the State Department can hardly be considered a long-range answer to the institutional erosion caused in that department by the creation of a dual State Department inside the White House.

Though Mr. Nixon appears convinced that competition between White House advisers and the established departments of government enhances creativity, recent experienee demonstrates that It also provokes demoralization and wasteful in-fighting down the line. As it now stands, there is precious little competition between the State Department and the White House National Security staff. # Frustration in Holland

Few developments are so frustrating for a democratic country as a national election that fails to break a serious political stalemate. The eenter-right eoalition that has governed for 18 months emerged with a paper majority of one in a lower house of 150, but dissension and defection in two of its parties would make continuity difficult in any event.

As the number of parties indicates, Dutch political instability of recent years is the end result of proportional representation carried to absurdity. Fourteen parties held seats in the outgoing lower house elected last year. At least a dozen will be represented In the new chamber, This proportional representation system derives from commendable zeal to protect the rights of each minority in a nation of 13 million made up of minorlties. But the result is a fractionalized society with weak governments based on shifting

Former Premier Barend Biesheuvel predicts that the assembling of a new government to replace his coalition may take as long as three months. His government will remain in office meanwhile as a earetaker regime with no real authority to tackle pressing problems including an 8 percent inflation rate. Like Belglum, Its Benelux neighbor, Holland has contributed much to the building of new postwar institutions in Europe for economic cooperation and mutual defense, But like Belgium, now also mired in political deadlock, the Dutch have yet to fashion political institutions that can cope with baffling change and maintain stability at home.

Talking in Korea

The slow page of negotiations between the regimes of North and South Korea need provoke neither surprise nor dismay. It is still little short of stunning that these longimplacable rivals are in faet talking to each other at all.

In the seven months since talks began, the two sides have agreed to end their decades of bitterly hostile propaganda. Through Red Cross auspiees, arrangements are underway to reunite families torn apart by the division of their country in 1945. A North-South coordinating committee has been organized. with significantly high representation on both sides, to pursue the political dialogue aimed at eventual reunification.

Attitudes of the two regimes differ on how the dialogue should proceed: the Communist regime of Pyongyang wants to plunge right into discussion of the political future, while the South Koeeans favor more gradual, stepby-step progress on nonpolitical and humanitarian issues to build confidence before the political issues at the core are raised. But the mere fact of talks in process acts as a damper on the mutual belligerence to which a generation of Koreans has grown ac-

The United States, in common with other powers, has wisely managed to keep hands off this internal dialogue so far, but it may not be able to stay aloof much longer. A critical element in the Korean confrontation has been the anaehronistic presence of a UN command, remnant of the era when the Koreas were shooting instead of talking.

President Chung Hee Park used his expeditionary force of 40,000 South Korean soldiers in Vietnam as leverage to insure that the United States would resist pressure mounting at the UN to wind down this symbolie presence. That leverage is now itself winding down.

There is nothing sacrosanet about preserving the UN flag in Korea, particularly if It stands as a reminder of hostilities between two regimes which are moving toward reconciliation. By now its removal would be more eosmetic than substantial; American military aid to South Korea could still be maintained under bilateral arrangements even after the UN cover were withdrawn.

If the United States does not take an initiative to reconsider the UN role in Korea, It might find Itself on the defensive and outvoted on the issue at next year's General Assembly.

Moscow and Marxist Chile

Chile's pioneering experiment in the supposedly democratic transition to Marxism is, after two years under President Allende, in a crucial phase. Mr. Allende marches bravely under an increasingly threadbare democratic banner and bangs the Marxist drum. But he also carries the begging bowl of the aspirant Russian satellite. Russia will now have to decide how much it would be worth to keep afloat both a Marxist Chile and the fletion that the transition to and from Communism despite the Brezhnev doctrine of "once a Communist country, always a Communist country") can be made smoothly and naturally through the ballot box. With a Front Populaire election alliance already agreed in France and with a powerful Communist party in an unsettled Italy, Moscow will probably decide that Mr. Allende's Marxism is a growth industry worth supporting.

The report states that between April and November, nineteen ingots of gold have been produced from silver.

NEW YORK-The selection of Timothy M. Healy as the first Governor General of the Irish Free State is a piece of rare tact. The sneers of the irreconcilables were all ready for the arrival of some titled Briton, sneers which would say to Ireland that she was free in name only. And now, in addition to the Parliament, which is 100 percent Irish, comes a governor-general who might be called 101 percent Irish. A "Corkonian" ascends a throne.

Youth Power: Making a Difference

By David S. Broder

BOSTON.—At a panel discussion on the impact of the youth vote in the 1972 election here the other day, a young woman in the audience asked Caryl Rivers Lupo, the Boston commentator, "Whatever made people think four years ago that young people would change the world?"

Mrs. Lupo, who looks just barely past the terrible over-30 herself, replied that a great many youth movement leaders had made that claim themselves in the 1960s, and that some of us in the press had done them the courtesy of taking them

It was as good an answer as any of us on the panel could have made. But the significance of the exchange was in the question, not the answer.

Skepticism

Several hundred students from some 45 New England colleges turned out for the seminar on American political trends cosponsored by the John F. Kennedy Library and Boston University. So far as one could discern from their comments and questions, their basic attitude is one of great skepticism about their generation's capacity to "change things." Their de-scription of their peers' mood added up to the question: "What's young people have shown remarkable talent for bringing issues into the national political arena. Their frustration stems from the fact that they have had considerably less success in securing the results they sought once their causes were made the matter of national political bargaining. The reason it seems to me, is that the members of the under-30 generation have not mastered the art of national coalitionbuilding. Whether it was civil rights, a Vietnam settlement, Eugene McCarthy or George Mc-Govern they were promoting, they have ultimately failed to find the allies they needed to build national majority support for their positions. This is not said in criticism. Most politicians of mature years fail the demanding tests of national politics. As Sam Brown, one of the brightest of the under-30 generation, pointed out, there are inherent limitations on any effort to anchor a national coalition on the college campuses.

The "failure" of the youth movement is a failure only if the young people take it as such. What several of the panelistsincluding Biden and Mrs. Lupotried to say was that there need be no such despair. When young people have sought

That may not resolve the doubts Mrs. Lupo's questioner—and so many other young people—seem to express. But it is the best answer a member of the older generation, unaccustomed to being an optimist, can offer. DARIS.—The world has now spun into a curiously intricate era of multipolarity. Some Western alliances an being buried, just as the Sino-Soviet pact was long ago interred, and others face alteration. The start of the 93d Courses next month will provide a test of how much further down the trail the President plans to go in his effort to lure labor away from his forty-year alliance with the Democrats. The AFL-CIO will be pressing for swift adoption of the Senate Labor Committee's bill to raise the minimum wage from $1.60 an hour to $2—a bill the administration helped scuttle last fall. Even more lundamental tests will come over union demands for "fairer balanee" in wage-price controls and over George Meant's expressed view that the heavy vote for labor-endorsed cougressional candidates-90 percent of them Democrats-represents a mandate for accelerated progress in social programs now sloted to feel the Nixon economy ax.

Showdowns Coming

It is the imminence of showdowns on all these issues that has caused many industrialists to view the designation of a Labor secretary from the building trades -"copyright owners in wage-push inflation"—as a harbinger of disaster. "There is going to have to be an early political confrontation between the Brennan viewpoint and the needs of the country," says a top official of one of the country's half dozen biggest companies. "This is a case of payola in Macy's window."

Ironically, there is more emharrassment than enthusiasm in top labor for the Brennan appointment, though all the less ship has rushed forward with congratulations Mr. Meany, who sat on the fence through the presidential campaign, is not eager to seem to be sitting in one Mr. Nixon's lap now. To labor's McGovern wing, the New Yorker epitomizes conservatism. Even epitomizes conscryausm.

among the protocol-conscious building trades presidents, there building trades is some reserve about the elevition of a regional satrap. Say Mr. Brennan's champions:

"Pete'li show them. He's a decent guy and he'll grow in the job just the way George Meany did." But at AFL-CIO hendquarters. bets are already being taken that the new Labor secretary won't outstay the nine months Murtin Durkin of the Plumbers Union lasted in the Eisenhower cabinet,

These moves are relatively subtle, however, as officially the cen-tral bank is maintaining a "neu-tral" policy, which is defined as neither helping to promote nor restrain the growth of money and credit.

Governor Tadashi Sasaki has several times hinted he would like to change that policy to one leaning toward restraint, but political pressures centering on the general election scheduled for Dec. 10 and external considerallons centering on government desires to avoid another revaluation have prevented him from so Japanese financial circles are expecting a seasonal fund shortage totaling more than 2,000 billion yen in December, a normal circumstance resulting from a large demand for funds to pay bonuses, taxes and other yearend expenses. Normally, the Bank of Japan expands the lending guidelines it sets for commercial banks to help cover the shortage, but this year, for the first lime since 1962, it has decided not to.

The central bank has ruled out for the time being an increase in its official discount rate, currently at 4.25 percent, despite a pronounced uptrend in European discount rates. But some other Japanese Interest rates are beginning to creep up in anticipa-tion of the December fund shortage, a move the central bank has welcomed for psychological reasons.

Call rates, which were increased 0,125 percent on Nov. 29, went up another 0.25 percent Saturday to 4,375 percent for overnight loans and 4.635 percent for unconditional advances. The com-mercial bill discount rate has also risen twice in recent weeks to 5,875 percent.

The Bank of Japan will relieve the December fund shortage partially through large-scale purchases of commercial bills, and the higher discount rate is expected to have a psychological effect on the market, bankers

Harder Times for Rothschilds

By Clyde H. Farnsworth PARIS, Dec. 5 (NYT).-It's as disconcerting as misplacing that gold ingot or watching greenbacks fintering in the wind. The French branch of the House of Rothschild, a family that has bankrolled governments, companies and even New York subways, is in unaccustomed difficulties.

Not that anyone expects the Rothschilds to go broke. "I should have what they've got left," said a young and very rich investment banker in Paris the other day.

The talk of the Paris financial establishment is of the batter-ing that the dynasty has been taking on some of its major holdings on the Bourse.

Strikes and a surcharge levied on nickel exports cut deeply into Le Nickel's profits and the share price tumbled even more swiftly than the stock of Cie. du Nord-from the equivalent of $60 in 1970 to $30 today.

Le Nord owns about one-fifth of the shares of Le Nickel. Under complex provisions of French company law, Le Nickel's slump would mean that as much as $5 million might have to be set against profits of Le Nord. The end result could be, insiders say, a loss for the bolding company, driving the share prices down still further.

With characteristic panache. however, the Rothschilds have scheduled what is likely to be the biggest ball of the social season here this winter at their 100-year-old chateau at Fer-

Increase of 9% Seen For Whole of Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (Reuters).--Business plant and equipment spending was al an annual rate of $37.67 billion in the third quarter of this year, 0.6 percent higher than in the second quarter but about 3 percent less than projected in a survey released last September, the Commerce Department reported today.

According to a survey taken in lale October and November by tha department, businessmen estimate o $4.7-billion increase in equipment spending in the fourth quarter, bringing capital outlays for the full year to $82.5 billion, 9 percent higher than the actual spending for 1971.

The survey also predicted that plant and equipment spending for the first half of 1973 would be at an annual rate of $97.3 billion, 12 percent higher than in the first half of 1972 and 8 percent more than the second half of 1972.

The department said that the smaller-than-expected increase in the third quarter of 1972 was probably caused by some spending being delayed until the fourth quarter of this year or early in

FTC to Negotiate With Pepsico The Federal Trade Commission has agreed to try to negotiate a consent agreement to settle its complaint challenging Pepsico's takeover of Rheingold. The FTC's decision was made at the request of Pepsico, which in a letter to the FTC also proposed to divest itself of Rheingold's Flavette Corp. subsidiary, a producer of soft-drink flavoring extracts. Pepsico recently made a tender offer to acquire Rheingold shares at $22 a share and last week announced that it had received 2.6 million Rheingold shares, or more than 32 percent of the ontstanding common. The FTC issued its complaint Nov. 18, charging that Pepsico's acquisition of a controlling interest in Rheingold would violate the Clayton anti-trust act by eliminating actual or potential competition between Pepsico and Rheingold's Flavette subsidiary in the soft-drink concentrate industry.

Squibb to Sell Unit To Cavenham of U.K.NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (Reuters)

-Squibb Corp. said today it has agreed in principle to sell the haby food operations of its Beech-Nut subsidiary to Cavenham Ltd. of Britain, an affiliate of Generale Occidentale SA of France. It said the purchase price will reflect several adjustments and assumption by the purchaser of certain liabilities and, therefore cannot be immediately disclosed. A final agreement is expected to be signed by Jan. 1, 1973. Purchase of Beech-Nut's baby food operation, which had sales last year of $69 million, would mark the first entry into tha United States market by Cavenof different partners, partnership necessarily understanding is limited, and odaptability and psychology become major factors. An example occurred on the diagramed deal. South might well have made a forcing opening, since he had good prospects of making teo tricks in a spade contract, but he contented himself with one spade. West's pre-emptive bid put pressure on North, who scraped up a bid of four soades—clearly an overbid since two spades would have been sufficient if West had passed the opening bid.

Even allowing for the fact that North had bid under pressure, South had no hesitation in moving toward slam, Blackwood disclosed that an ace was missing and that a grand slam was out of reach. East should have passed, but his honor strength caused him to think that the slam was doubled. The club queen was led, and the declarer sized up his situa-tion. He felt sure that East's double was based on all three missing trumps and the diamond ace. He would have given a lot to trade the spade nine for one of dummy's trumps so that he could lead for a finesse and hold the lead in dummy.

But there was a chance of overcoming this problem if the de-fense was not alert, so South glanced to his right and was satisfied with what he saw: East did not seem likely to rise to any occasions.

After winning the club lead, South led to the heart king and cashed the ace, discarding a diamond. Next he casually led the spade six from dummy, and equally casually East produced the deuce. Backing his psychological judgment, South played the four from his hand and was rewarded when West showed out. It was then an easy matter to finesse again and claim the slam, conceding one diamond trick The unexpected deep finesse cost the defense 2,420 points,

Scot Wins New York Bout

Buchanan Stops Korean in 2d Round

By Dean McGowen

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (NYT).-Esthétically, the night was a success for the South Koreans. Pugi-listically, it was a disaster. The charm and grace of two Korean dancers, Sum Ock Lee and Il Horg Yoon, were warmly applauded by the fight mob in Madison Square Garden last night. But for Hyun Kim, the Oriental featherweight (126 pounds) champion, and for Chang Kil Lee, the Oriental junior-welterweight (140 pounds) titleholder, it was not a night to remember with

Right to the Jaw

Especially for the 23-year-old Lee. He lasted until 1 minute 43 seconds of the second round against Ken Buchanan, the former world lightweight (135 pounds) titleholder. Fuchanan, the fancy-hoxing 27-year-old Scot from Exlinburgh. floored his foe with a straight right to the jaw that sent Lee down on his back, his eyes glassy.

Lee struggled to his feet at the count of 4 and took the mandatory 8 count from referee Johnny Lo Bisneo. Then the referee waved Buchanan back to the action, and the Scot calmly destroyed the senses of his young foe with a barrage of rights and lefts to the chin.

With Lee taking solid punishment and unable to defend himself. Lo Bianco halted the mismatch. It was a mismatch because Lee, with a straight-up stance, was made to order for the agile, sbarp-hitting Scot. Lee had been unde-feated in 19 professional fights before last night. The knockout was only the 18th of Buchanan's career. He has woo 45 fights and lost just two. He is waiting for a chance to fight again for the lightweight crown he lost to Roberto Duran of Panama here last June. The two are supposed

Kim proved a far more durable rival for Walter Seeley of Sayville, N.Y., in B 10-round featherweight match. Kim demonstrated a tough body attack, but Seeley's overall boxing skill was enough to give him a unanimous decision.

Ksn Buehanan of Scotland knocks down South Korea's Chang Kil Lee for first time in second round. Left is referee's hand,

After the fight, it was learned that Seeley had broken bis left hand in the second round. It is estimated the hand will be in a cast for eight

No Superstar in Sight

Skiing Prospects Seem Colorless This Season

By Bernard Kirsch

VAL D'ISERE, France, Dec. 5 (IBT).—Ski sweaters have more stripes this year and snow shoes are two-toned. The French Alps are green and white and starting tonight, red and white Martini vermouth will be available for fres in what may be the beginning of a black-and-white anti-climactic season of skiing.

Austria's Karl Schranz is gone and France's Jean-Claude Killy will be around as spectator and spectacle. In line to replace them are Gustavo Thaeni and Bernhard Russi of Switzerland, but neither is as handsome as Killy nor as controversial as Schranz. nor as good on skis. Besides, it is the season after the Olympics and what can top a gold medal? The search for someone with charisms and a technicolor personality-alas, it must be a male-debuts Friday with a men's giant sixiom and ends Sunday with a men's downhill as the World Cup ski season begins for the seventh year. On Thursday, there will be a World Cup downhill for women and on Saturday a women's slalom. But male chauvinism—still going strong in the mountains—would never permit a female to rule the ski world. Also, most ski journalists are male, which means a woman can only become the darling of the slopes. And besides, everyona knows that Anne-Maria Proell will dominate again and she is too quiet and powerfully built to be a darling.

Expansion and New Scoring

Possibly adding to the quiet in 1972-73 will be the expansion of the season and a new scoring system which, one coach said, was devised because of the lack of an overpowering atblete. It will be the third scoring change in four years.

When the World Cup format was initiated in 1966, a saler could count in his point total his best three finishes in each of the three disciplines—downhill, s'alam and giant slalam—and there were only a tatal of about 15 races. It meant that a skier had to win some races to win the World Cup, and Killy dld just that for two seasons, besides winning three gold medals in the 1968 Olympics. Schranz also was a consistent winner,

For the past two seasons, during the quiet reign of Thoenl, each racer's best five results were counted, and the number of events also was increased. It became a matter of perseverance you didn't bave to be a superstar to win the World Cup, or place high. Thoeni, a mild-mannered Italian but no superstar, won one World Cup race last year while winning the cup. He also took the Olympic giant stalom.

24-Race Season

There will be 24 races this season, and the skl circuit will end March 24 after having traveled from Alyeska, Alaska, to Naeba, Japan, and Heavenly Valley, Culif. The World Cup scoring this year has been divided into three periods: December, then January. and then February and March combined.

In period one, there will be five races and the best three results will count for each skler. In period two, the best five results of nine races will be added up, and in No. 3, the best six of 10 count. Thus, 14 races can go toward the final count. Since 25 poiots go to a race victor, there can be a maximum score of 350 points, and the way the races are divided into periods, a downhill specialist can score points in all eight downhills, as can giant statom and alalom skiers in their specialties. What the new system does is face the realization that no longer is there on the scene a racer who can compete competitively in all three events—like a Killy. The new system breeds specialization.

The new system also favors downhillers, because it is easier to finish a downhill than a slalom, and a good downhiller has a better chance to score points.

Contrast and Compare

Hank Tauber, the assistant program director for the U.S. Alpine ski team, compared this season to the expansion on all sports fronts. "Look at bockey," he said, "it used to be a six-team league [the National Hockey League.] "Look at it now." There are 28 teams in two major U.S. bockey leagues.

But before going to the cold slopes, which snow has not yet completely covered, the cardinal ski activity gets under way this evening and won't end until Friday, when the fourth straight cocktail party will have taken its toil. Filling various hotel lobbies will be ski officials and ski coaches, who will be asked to bring along token representations of their teams. There also will be Killy, ski worshippers and journalists, and by the time Friday or Sunday rolls around, there is a good chance that everybody in Val d'Isère will be loaded-with color and charisma.

Prehistoric Ribs

By Russell Baker

year-old ox bone with human writing on it has been found in France. The writing, according to the Associated Press, is a grouping of symbolic arcs. hranches, angles and parallel lines, which proves, among other things, that even 135,000 years ago people had trouble with French.

Alexander Marshack, the archaeologist reporting the find, describes lt as "prewriting." He is impressed by its age because hitherto nobody had thought the French of that period-50,000 to 75,000 years before Neanderthal man-were smart ecough to write their names. much less symbolic arcs and branches, on an ox rib.

Archaeologists are a cautious bunch. Devotion to the scientific principle hobbles their pcetic magination. Thus they are reluctant to speculate on what this message from the dim past says. or how it came to be written. although they believe it to be the work of Acheulian hunters.

Most of us would not know an Acheulian hunter from a Chicago Bear, but we would have very little difficulty putting this ox rih in perspective. It was almost certainly the work of a man named Pierre, or its pre-Neanderthal equivalent.

Pierre must have been a sort hf early press secretary for a famous Acheulian hunter named François, and the ox rib is a press release. It seems likely that all press releases in those days were written on ox ribs, since oxen were very plentiful then and ribs of the comparatively rare mastodon would have been saved for writing the news on.

We may assume that François was running for high office among the Acheulian hunters and that Pierre had composed the press release to accuse François's rival, Henri, of being soft on prehistoric horses.

The day before, one of the workers on Henri's campaign staff would have quit in a huff because his advice was being ignored and would have revealed to the rupt trying.

WASHINGTON-A 135,000- mastodon rib that Henri, once while leading a great hunt in Bordeaux, had stopped his hunters from killing a herd of prehistoric horses at Château Haut

> "I predict-and you can write It on wolf ribs," Henrl had sald, "that these beasts, if allowed to survive and become posthistoric horses, will someday return as much as $35 on a $2 investment."

When this story hit the caves in the morning mastodon ribs, there was a tense strategy session at François's ribquarters. "This Henri is a dangerous radical who, if not rejected by the people, will turn the Acheulian lumters into a tribe of idle longshot bettors expecting a handout from the posthistoric horses," someone would have said, politicians being the same all through, and before.

It is easy to hear François's voice speaking over the great chasm of time. "I didn't know we bad prehistoric borses right now." François said. "I was under the impression that they would come later. In the Paleolithic era.

"Haven't we already had the Paleolithic era, Chief?" Plerre asked. "How do I know?" François asked. "When you live in these remote periods, you've got to be a spelling genius to know what era your fossils belong to" The opshot of this would have been a decision to issue an ox rih denouncing Henri for being a dupe of prehistoric horse-ism. Pierre had just finished cutting the symbolic arcs. branches, angles and parallel lines in the rib when a woman ran screaming into the cave. "A giant man-eating pterodactyl is about to attack us." she cried. Handing the ox rib to François for an okay. Pierre said, "Just another hysterical woman. Ignore her. Pterodactyls either aren't due on earth for another 25,000 years or all vanished 150,000 years ago.

Having a typical college educatloo. I can't remember which." They were still standing there when the giant man-eating pterodectyl flew in and ate them. when and four of François's advancemen, in two gulos. This is why it is possible today to earn $35 on a mere $2 investment, or go bank-

I am sickened and angered every time I hear of a new discovery of Indian graves and bones... the anthropologists rush in like vultures to pick and measure.'

In the Name of Scientific Research...

By Robert Reinhold

TORONTO (NYT).—"Enough indignities have been suffered by our ancestors in the name of research." Harvey McCue, an Olibwa Indian told o meeting of anthropologists here the other day. "Anthropology as a discipline can assist in sending those aspects of contemporary society that discriminate against native people, but I think it's time for a moratorium on further digging."

The young Indian was expressing a growing resentment among Indians, Eskimos, Aborigines and other "native" people toward the scientists who study their behavior and customs. And it is stirring much unease and aoul-searching within the profession over the anthropologist's relationship and responsibility to the people he studies.

This was one of the main concerns on the minds of 3.500 anthropologists from all over the world who gathered here last week for that primitive annual ritual known as the meeting of the American Anthropological Association.

Concern over the impact of their work on their subjects has iong troubled thoughtful scholars. But the matter has been given renewed urgency both by the new ethnic militancy and by the emergence of a corps of politically radical young anthro-pologists who are challenging some of the most basic precepts

And what made the matter more immediate here was the reseoce of large numbers of Canadian and American Indians who mingled with the anthropologists in the halls of the Royal York Hotel and sometimes denounced them bitterly in

Concession

As one Indian leader put it: "I am sickened and angered every time I hear of a new discovery of Indian graves and bones and the anthropologists rush in like vultures to pick and

Although most anthropologists would undoubtedly protest such description of their endeavors, many concede there is at least a grain of truth in it. Noting that historically anthropologists were used by the 19th-century colonial powers to gather information to help manage and exploit indigenous peoples, Prof. Joseph B. Casagrande of the University of Illinois, who is pres'dent of the association, said it was not surprising that anthropologists were sometimes resented

"You must treat people as fellow human beings—as though you were doing research in a town next door in the United States," he said.

Prof. Ward Goodenough of the University of Pennsylvania candidly concedes that he had been careless in the past by not consulting with local people before doing research in Microne-sia. "Now I carefully ask permission of all kinds of people but it never occurred to me before to ask," he said.

Many anthropologists believe that while they are basically objective scientists their published work has helped combat misconceptions and half-truths about alien cultures and has helped bring educational and medical improvements to de-

But the extent to which the researcher should be an activist on behalf of his subjects is a matter of considerable debate. Radical anthropologists, who have organized into a group called Anthropologists for Radical Political Action, seek to use their profession as a tool of revolutionary social change. They argue that anthropologists, in working for established governments, have sometimes added to what they see as the oppression of native minorities throughout the world,

Unhappiness

The social view has provoked much unhappiness within the association. "You do what good you can for the people you are associated with, but you don't go in on a missionary basis under the guise of anthropology," said Prof. Robert W. Ehrich of Brooklyn College, who added:

"You also have a responsibility to the people who let you into the country. You have to protect your informants but that does not mean you take advantage of the courtesy extended to you by encouraging revolution."

One of the most worrisome questions confronting the scholars was the possibility that their work, however well-meaning, could be used against the peoples whose behavior and customs they had studied

Much comment was stirred by an impassioned speech on this by Georges W. Condominas, an ethnographer at the Ecole Pratique des Hautes Etudes in Paris. He told how a book he had written some years ago about the Montagnard people of Vietnam had been translated and reprinted, apparently in violation of copyright, by the U.S. government, for distribution to the Special Forces in Vietnam

"How can one accept, without trembling with rage," he said, "that this work, in which I wanted to describe in their human plenitude these men who have so much to teach us about life, should be offered to the technicians of death-of their death!"

PEOPLE: Kiddie Pieks Pocket; Sunta Striking Back

Today's meanest thief; an unidentified kiddle who lifted Santa's wallet while sitting on his lap at a shopping center la Fort Lauderdale, Florida. But the Sania, George Underwood, 28, is trying to take care of himself. "I'm not so jolly anymore," Underwood said. "Most of the kids are really great, but there are a few . . . They try to pull off my beard and call me a lake. I take those kind aside and tell them 'Shape up, kid, or Santa will belt you one.' Then I smile at the kids waiting in line."

Today's frustrated thief: Rosa H., a 22-year-old housewife of Ulmerfeld, Austria, who, using a plastic gun, tried to hold up . bank in order to replace her husband's savings which she had spent on clothes. Police said a teller screamed and the wouldbe robber fled. The bank decided not to press charges. 7.8.8.8

Thoughtful police in Aldridge, England, have banned hunting in nearby woods to prevent courting couples from being shot accidentally. The place is thick with them (couples)," a police spokesman was quoted. "At night you can't walk two feet without stumbling over somebody. don't want anybody to get hurt."
